DESCRIPTION

Set on over an acre of wooded ground, this 3-bedroom, 3-bath home rests quietly among mature trees, where the still water of a nearby pond reflects the sky and the changing seasons. Constructed using Insulated Concrete Form (ICF) walls, the home was designed with durability and efficiency in mind—solid, energy-efficient, and built to endure. The indoor pool level is separated by a dedicated firewall, providing an additional layer of structural integrity and thoughtful design. Inside, the home offers generous living space and a feature rarely found in Fort Worth: a large indoor swimming pool, a place where light moves across the water and the idea of home begins to feel more like retreat. Above it all, a balcony with its own fireplace overlooks the pond, offering a quiet place to sit as evening settles across the trees and the water grows still. The property welcomes you with a circular driveway, an oversized garage, and the quiet confidence of a home built to last. It is a place that offers something increasingly rare—space, privacy, and the feeling of being somewhere apart from the noise of the world.
